CASE OVERVIEW: If you purchased interior molded doors at any time from October 19, 2014 to December 31, 2018 you may be eligible to receive money from a $56 million settlement. Jeld-Wen and Masonite have each agreed to pay $28 million to a class of direct buyers.

The doormakers were first hit with the claims nearly two years ago in a suit brought by a building materials supplier in Virginia federal court, accusing the companies of using their market dominance to fix the prices for a popular type of indoor door.

With 85% of the market for interior molded doors in their grasp, Jeld-Wen and Masonite were able to coordinate a series of excessive price hikes, aided by their virtually universal control over interior molded doorskins, a key component of the manufacturer of those doors, the suit claimed.

WHO IS ELIGIBLE TO PARTICIPATE IN THIS SETTLEMENT: All persons or entities that purchased interior molded doors in the United States directly from any Defendant at any time from October 19, 2014 to December 31, 2018 (the “Settlement Class Period”).
